Edna Evelyn Gieger

Notes

ding information about the Gieger family has come in some of the most fascinating ways. One evening Elwood came home from the Memphis Public Library and said he had found information about three Gieger graves, two miles south of Collins, Mississippi. We left immediately and drove the approximately 300 miles from our home in Memphis to find the graves. When we arrived in the vicinity, we stopped at one house and asked a young lady if she had any knowlege of the grave site. I must admit that such a request from strangers would be disturbing in the day an age in which we live. We apologized to her and went to her neighbors house down the road. Here, a lovely couple invited us in and gave us a phone number that we could call for the information. We were told about a Gieger family who lived near her.

We continued our search, as we were directed across Highway 49 South to the home of an elderly gentleman named Mr. Pope. Mr. Pope welcomed us and told us that he had lived on that spot of land all of his life. To our delight, he knew exactly where the graves were that we were looking for. He pointed to a grove of trees to the North of where we were standing. He said "Do you see that big tree right there?" Yes we saw it, in fact we saw the whole grove. Then he said, "About 50 yards on the other side of that tree, you will find the graves."

We asked him if he would mind going with us to the graves. After all, we had already frightened one young lady and we did not want to get shot for prowling around on someones land. He said he would not go with us in our car, but he said "You can leave your car right here and it will be alright and you can go with me in my pickup truck and I will show you the graves." We were happy to go with him. We boarded the truck and set out through the back yard-through a gate leading to a large barn, on through the hallway of the barn and out into the pasture. We crossed a small bridge after Mr. Pope drove the cows off the bridge, and on out into the pasture. It was not very far when we came to a six foot fence. He and Elwood climbed the fence and just as he had said there were three conrete covered graves. They were slabs with the inscription on each one.

The graves had, at one time, been enclosed in a fence, but now they are just there in the woods. The inscriptions were Jessie Gieger, born 20 March 1793, Tabitha Martin Gieger, born 22 July 1793, Martha Dikes, died May 1, 1862. Martha Dikes was the mother of Eleanor Jane Dikes.

As were were coming out of the pasture with our new found friend, Mr. Pope, he stopped and pointed to a clearing near by, saying that this s the exact site of the first home of Jessie and Tabitha Gieger. The site was near the banks of the Okatoma River. He said they came down e river and settled there in that exact spot. That was the first home of our grandparents in Covington County, Mississippi, then Indian land.

The Giegers came to Mississippi in the early part of the 19th century. They were the first families to settle in Mississippi in 1815. At that time Mississippi was Indian Territory. They came by way of Georgia and South Carolina.
